

Brian Wright was born in Kalamazoo, Michigan, in 1949. He grew up near Kansas City, then moved with his family to Oklahoma City in junior high. In a bookmobile he discovered seminal liberty-oriented writings which led to his participation in the Goldwater campaign for president (1964). Later, moving to Detroit, in college—he acquired a BSME from Wayne State University in 1969—, he became a passionate voice for Ayn Rand’s artistic vision of heroic individualism; in 1972 he took part in the founding of the Libertarian Party of Michigan (LPM).

For the next three decades, Brian engaged in public speaking, writing, and other activities to promote reason and liberty. In the turbulent 70s, the [Michigan State Police 'Red Squad' compiled a file on Wright, describing a lecture he delivered on anarchy.(!)] He chaired the LPM several times, served as its newsletter editor, and ran for state representative (1982), secretary of state (1986), and US Congress (1994) on the Libertarian ticket.

[In 1992, Michigan drug police raided Brian’s apartment, resulting, seven years later, in a felony conviction for growing six marijuana plants in a Phototron; this bizarre and mindlessly cruel assault by the War on Drugs inspired Brian’s 2004 migration to the Free State (New Hampshire).]

The Free State experience proved a catalyst both for liberty activism and for igniting Brian’s literary output, also leading to Brian’s founding of the opinion and review site: TheCoffeeCoaster.com. Finance and family matters required Wright’s return to Michigan in 2008.

He runs Free Man Publishing Company, home of the storygraph, the syllograph, and customized personal publishing services. Also a positive empowerment business: <http://bwright-millionaire.com>

The Truman Prophecy (2016)

The Truman Prophecy is an ensemble-cast predictive story of how humanity will imminently declare its Independence, individually en masse, and thus let go of the world domination and mind control agenda of the Men of the Power Sickness. The movement consists of: 1) the Toto (truth) project exposing key Threats based on mass deception, 2) the Dorothy (justice) phase using grand juries to restore good public behavior and 3) the Truman phase for individually self-creating as Independent.

After 9/11 Truth (2015)

The book 1) lays out a brief listing and description of ikey truth works that show the government's official story of 9/11 is an absurd cover story for a false-flag act of state terror and 2) provides a simple Truth-Letter Closure (TLC) campaign that writes personal 'letters' to contacts appealing that they a) seriously view or read at least one such truth presentation, then b) publicly declare support for real investigation with indictments.

Motor City Witchcraft Trial\(s\) (2014)

Brian was caught up in the struggle to help the wife of Pete Hendrickson (author of Cracking the Code), Doreen, in her struggle vs. a court that held her in contempt for refusing a judge's order to commit perjury. He attended her sham trial in Detroit, July 2014, and was moved to write this book.

Leaving the Sandbox (2014)

Leaving the Sandbox (LTS) develops a simple strategy or 'high plan' for Libertarian Party state and local affiliates. In addition to the roughly 80 pages of the actual strategy, this book includes another 100 pages or so of appendices consisting of pertinent writings from the author's Coffee Coaster Website.

Mother's Stone (2013)

This book stems from a series of columns Brian wrote diarizing his mother's end times. She was victim to a genetic illness known as polycystic kidney disease (PKD), and spent her final 3.5 years on in-center dialysis. Part II: The Life—came from a special remembrance reception for her. The waves in the sea of time caused by Mom's 'rolling stone' are a beacon to us all.

Don't Throw Mama off the Turnpike (2009)

Another work related directly to the Free State experience came in 2009, when Wright had returned to Michigan because of a need to care for his mother. It is a humor and travel work, where he had to sell his 'Free State' Audi. Don't Throw Mama off the Turnpike (this link is to Lulu version) also includes three other narratives of memorable public events.

Sacred Nonaggression Principle (2010, orig. 2007)

The SNaP book is Mr. Wright's first political magnum opus. Wright elevates the concept of nonaggression, he fully describes it... along with laying down a clean system for understanding the origins of legitimized aggression historically and proposing workable technologies for reaching a worldwide society without it. [Sacred in the title means 'most exalted or precious.']

New Pilgrim Chronicles (2006)

Wright's #1 Free State work is New Pilgrim Chronicles (← this link is to the original Lulu version). It is an early look at the activists who started out and were the earliest of early movers... following the first Porcfest in 2004 and then #2 in 2005. NPC follows his settling in New Boston, and taking part in various activities —e.g. the Manchester Porcupines, antiwar vigils, fighting smoking bans and Real ID, etc.

There Must Be Some Mistake (1999)

Wright had a run-in with the 'law' for modestly defying drug prohibition. His 2008 monograph, There Must Be Some Mistake (← this link is to the original Lulu version), was composed at the turn of the century. Brian's negative encounter with our psychotic and sadistic law enforcement systems hastened his pilgrimage to the Free State.
